Endless Possibilities

In the realm of interior design, attention to every detail is paramount, with trimming playing a crucial role in shaping the overall ambiance and character of a space. Much like the precise strokes of an artist's brush, our trims act as defining embellishments, transforming ordinary rooms into enchanting sanctuaries. Whether it's the elegance of intricately hand-tied tassels, the refined simplicity of clean lines, or the playful charm of novel embroidered borders, each trim possesses its own unique narrative, capable of infusing timeless opulence into traditional settings or adding a contemporary sophistication to modern interiors.

This season, we are thrilled to unveil three brilliant collections of exquisitely crafted passementerie, each with their own personality offering boundless inspiration to bring your vision to life.

First, in a seamless fusion of classical aesthetics and refined elegance, our DÉLICAT collection features seven finely crafted small-scale patterns woven from luxurious fine twisted silk yarn, available in a palette of seventeen beautiful hues. These delicate patterns, with their intricate detailing and selection of deeply saturated and subtle tones, are sure to enhance the most sophisticated interiors of today while honoring traditional design principles.

Next, Lori Weitzner presents ACROBATICS, her 15th collection for Samuel & Sons, showcasing five innovative holdbacks that redefine the art of drapery adornment. With a stylish blend of modern whimsy and classic craftsmanship, Acrobatics exudes graceful, playful movement through unexpected sculptural twists and material combinations. These eye-catching designs, balancing simplicity and complexity in innovative three-dimensional patterns, offer a fresh perspective on drapery embellishment.

Finally, we are delighted to introduce WESTMINSTER, a charming collection of embroidered linen borders inspired by our love for dogs. Featuring four distinctive patterns, each depicting a different breed—from the dignified Scottie to the lovable Goldador—these versatile designs can enrich a variety of settings, from residential to hospitality spaces, libraries to living rooms, or even as delightful accents in children's rooms.

With our unparalleled selection of beautifully crafted trimmings, we invite you to explore the endless possibilities and elevate your interiors with timeless sophistication and artistry.

Design by: Phoebe Howard | Draperies by Shade Store

Mirror a room's motifs with the silhouette of a trim. Phoebe Howard echoes the foliage from her bedroom wallpaper with a vine-like cascade of La Terre Onion Tassel Fringe.

Make an effortless match with monochrome details. Nadia Watts uses The Céline Ombré Brush Fringe to add a subtle gradation of color to the solid throw pillow, while the Marisol Border seamlessly integrates organic motifs, hand-appliquéd with metallic beads that catch the room's natural light.

Add a unique silhouette with dimensional trimming. The Posy Scalloped Border creates a structural, looped edge, elevating the throw pillow with a strikingly unexpected finish.

ABOUT ACROBATICS

Samuel & Sons: This is your 15th collection with Samuel & Sons, can you tell us about your journey of becoming a trim designer?

Lori Weitzner: Wow, our 15th collection and I have loved every minute! I never thought about trim before, but I was at the Pacific Design Center presenting my collection of fabrics at the showroom and Sam and Michael Cohen happened to be in the audience. Afterwards, they asked me if I ever considered designing trim and I had not — but after seeing their collection my brain went crazy with ideas, mainly of a new, more modern approach to trim design. I had always thought of trim as very old-fashioned, to be honest. But suddenly I thought about how I could translate some of my textile ideas, techniques, and innovations into trim... it could open up an entirely new audience who might otherwise not think to use trimming! That was the beginning of a long and fruitful relationship, and, of course, working with Samuel & Sons is wonderful. They are like family to me.

S&S: What was your inspiration behind the collection?

LW: The prompt from Marisa (VP of Design at Samuel & Sons) was a bit different than our former collaborations, and we were excited to take on the challenge to design a modern holdback/tieback collection! Jewelry is often our first stop for inspiration, followed by sculpture and ceramics. We are always intrigued by an unexpected mix of shapes and materials.

S&S: Tell us about your design process.

LW: First of all please note, I have an amazing team and great collaborators. We sit together and dream and research and sketch. Then we hone in on how to translate it all into something that will be unique but saleable. Bringing our ideas to life with a prototype is a journey in itself, and not always a linear process. In the end, we always find the way!

S&S: You are known for using color, how did you land on the neutral palette for Acrobatics?

LW: I do love color, but surprisingly, neutrals are sometimes my favorite of colors. Since the collection needed to be quite modern, with materials like faux leather, suede, and wood, we wanted the palette to reflect those materials in nature. Neutrals are what I call the "chameleon colors" — easy to use in any interior.

S&S: How do you envision designers using this collection? What types of interiors do you see the pieces living in?

LW: I see very elegant simple drapery — think linen, velvet, or a mix. A bit rustic chic for some of the leather, suede, and wood, and perhaps silk or dressier for the open trellis design. These are for less is more interiors, with just a detail or two that make the space special. Jewelry for the modern designer.

S&S: Do you have a favorite holdback from Acrobatics? Why?

LW: That is unfair, they are like my children- I could never choose!

WALLCOVERING WEITZNER

LORI WEITZNER, principal and creative director of Lori Weitzner, Design, is internationally known for her contributions to the world of textiles and wallcoverings under the brand Weitzner.

From top to bottom: Cartwheel Holdback in Snow, Putty, Slate, and Chocolate

The multi-strand chain links of wrapped linen that comprise the Somersault Holdback are simple, but tremendously stylish, with just enough detail to create interest without being flashy. This is a defining example of casual elegance.

The classic geometric pattern in the Tightrope Holdback, evokes the tightropes traversed by acrobats the world over and marries the modern open structure with the traditional symmetry in a subtly textured lattice pattern. Understated and elegant, this holdback can be dressed up or down.

" I look to incorporate two design elements when I create products for the home. The first is a surprising mix of materials, and the second is creating movement in the product so that it feels alive. This capsule collection of holdbacks achieves both."

Behind the Doors of de Gournay

Tucked away in the Hollywood Hills, de Gournay's private residence opened its doors this year in Los Angeles. The brand's signature hand-painted wallcoverings and fabrics set the tone for decorative detail (big and small), from delicately trimmed draperies to bold, custom corded sofas. The space redefines the Southern California aesthetic, bringing artisan craft to the forefront with a relaxed West Coast edge and, of course, an innate sense of chic.
